B. Additional Explanation Regarding Relationship of Cases Listed.

The instant action involves an individual plaintiff in a wheelchair (CRAIG YATES) who claims personal injuries to his upper extremities caused when he purportedly had difficulty in entering the defendants' premises in this action through its double doors. Institutional plaintiff (DISABILITY RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT, EDUCATION, SERVICES: HELPING YOU HELP OTHERS) has no cognizable claim because it lacks standing to sue (see infra). Both of these parties, as well as all of the parties listed in this Notice of Related Cases, are represented by the same law firm, Thomas E. Frankovich, PLC, with the sole exception of SF Sup. Ct. Case No. CGC-08-470951.

The lawsuit alleges various violations of the plaintiff's disability rights. The following constitutes the analysis of how the suit identified in this Notice of Related Cases involves the same parties and how they are based on the same or similar claims.

Plaintiff: YATES, CRAIG

Those cases listed in this Notice of Related Cases in which plaintiff CRAIG YATES is an individual plaintiff in this Court, Marin County Superior Court and the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, involve the same individual plaintiff who claims, as a result of accessing the premises of every single premises owned or operated by the named defendants, very similar, if not identical, personal injuries in each lawsuit over the course of three years, to wit:

- "Plaintiff CRAIG YATES is a person with physical disabilities who, on or about June 11, 2004, was an invitee, guest, patron, customer . . . [who] suffered bodily injury (including, but not limited to, fatigue, stress, strain and pain in wheeling and attempting to and/or transferring around, through, up and over architectural barriers), physical discomfort, emotional distress, mental distress, mental suffering, mental anguish, which includes, but is not limited to, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, anger, chagrin, disappointment and worry, expectedly and naturally associated with a person with physical disabilities being denied access . . ." (U.S.D.C. N.D. Cal. Case No. 3:2004cv04308-BZ, Complaint, ¶¶26, 28, 64, 72, 73, 81);

Plaintiff CRAIG YATES's repeated bodily injury and emotional distress claims over the course of four years calls into serious question the veracity of those claims. Indeed, his claims are reminiscent of another individually named plaintiff JAREK MOLSKI who also asserted repeated bodily injury and emotional distress claims over many years in hundreds of lawsuit and whom the United States District Court for the Central District of California found to be a vexatious litigant sanctioned the law firm representing plaintiff Molski, Thomas E. Frankovich, a Professional Law Corporation. (See Order Granting Defendant's Motion to Declare Jarek Molski a Vexatious Litigant and for a Pre-filing Order Requiring Molski to Obtain Leave of Court Before Filing Any Other Claims under the Americans with Disabilities Act [the "Vexatious Litigant Order"] in *Molski et al v. The Ninth Circuit upheld the Vexatious Litigant Order. (See generally Molski v. Evergreen Dynasty Corp. (9th Cir.2007) 500 F.3d 1047, 1062, Part V attached hereto as Exhibit "B.") In upholding the district court's Vexatious Litigant Order, the Ninth Circuit noted:

[I]n 2004 the Frankovich Group filed at least 223 nearly identical lawsuits in the Northern and Central Districts of California, that the complaints all stated an ADA claim and the same four claims under California state law, that the damages requested in each case were identical and that, other than superficial alteration of the names and facts, the complaints were textually identical down to the typos." Id. at 1052-53. We also considered and agreed with the district court's observation that many of the claims of bodily injury found in the various complaints were "contrived." Id. at 1053. Specifically, we noted that: [t]he court found in particular that "the rate of physical injury defies common sense," noting that the plaintiffs alleged similar injuries sustained in a similar fashion at different businesses on the same day. The court noted that the similar injuries did not excuse the existence of accessibility barriers, but that its finding that the injury claims were contrived was "merely a recognition of the fact that reasonable people, once injured, tend to take affirmative steps to avoid similar physical injuries, rather than repeat that same activity 400 times (or five times in the same day)."

Molski, supra, 500 F.3d at 1053-54 (Exhibit "B" hereto [internal citations omitted, emphasis added]).

Defendant PURGATORY, INC., submits that plaintiff CRAIG YATES, represented by Thomas E. Frankovich, a Professional Law Corporation, has engaged in the same litigation tactics as plaintiff JAREK MOLSKI. Thus, defendant respectfully contends that this case involves the same parties and is based on the same or similar claims as the pending cases before this Court, the Marin County Superior Court and the federal district court for the Northern District of California and arises from the same or substantially identical transactions, incidents, or events requiring the determination of the same or substantially identical questions of law or fact within the meaning of Rule 3.300(a) of the California Rules of Court.

In addition, given the repetitive claims of the bodily injury and emotional distress allegations in these suits, the defendants have a right not only to challenge the legitimacy of the allegations, but should be afforded the opportunity to question comparative fault and apportionment of any legitimate claims of personal injuries. Consequently, defendant PURGATORY, INC., submits that, for judicial economy reasons assignment to a single judge of all cases in which plaintiff CRAIG YATES is a party is warranted because litigation of these claims will require substantial duplication of judicial resources if heard by different judges within the meaning of Rule 3.300(a) of the California Rules of Court.

Plaintiff: DISABILITY RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT, EDUCATION, SERVICES: HELPING YOU HELP OTHERS

In every complaint filed by an individual plaintiff as identified in this Notice of Related Cases, plaintiff DISABILITY RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT EDUCATION SERVICES: HELPING YOU HELP OTHERS is also a party and describes itself as a nonprofit organization advocating on disability issues and seeks redress along with the individual plaintiff. In an extraordinary number of the cases identified herein, there is typically a challenge made to plaintiff DISABILITY RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT EDUCATION SERVICES: HELPING YOU HELP OTHERS's standing to sue.

An organization may have standing to bring suit on behalf of its members if (1) its members would otherwise have standing to sue in their own right, (2) the interests it seeks to protect are germane to the organization's purpose, and (3) the participation of individual members in the lawsuit is not required. (Hunt v. Washington Apple Advertising Comm'n (1977) 432 U.S. 333, 343. The first two requirements for organizational standing are constitutional; the third is prudential. (Or. Advocacy Ctr v. Mink (2003) 322 F.3d 1101, 1109.

Under the prudential standing doctrine, "the individual plaintiff is in the best position to litigate his own claims," (Molski v. Kahn Winery (C.D.Cal.2005) 381 F.Supp.2d 1209, 1210; see also Allen v. JAREK MOLSKI, an individual; and DISABILITY RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT EDUCATION SERVICES: HELPING YOU HELP OTHERS, a California corporation,

Plaintiffs,

v.

MANDARIN TOUCH RESTAURANT; EVERGREEN DYNASTY CORP., a California corporation; and BRIAN McINERNEY and KATHY S. McINERNEY, as joint tenants, Defendants.

Case No. CV 04-0450 ER

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DECLARE JAREK MOLSKI A VEXATIOUS LITIGANT AND FOR A PRE-FILING ORDER REQUIRING MOLSKI TO OBTAIN LEAVE OF COURT BEFORE FILING ANY OTHER CLAIMS UNDER THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

Defendant Evergreen Dynasty Corporation, doing business as Mandarin Touch Restaurant,¹ has asked this Court to declare Plaintiff Jarek Molski a vexatious litigant, and to order Molski to obtain leave of court

¹ Brian and Kathy S. McInerney did not join in the Motion for a Pre-Filing Order. For simplicity, this order will refer to Mandarin Touch and Evergreen Dynasty, collectively, as "Defendant."

32

1 before filing any other claims under the Americans With 2 Disabilities Act. The matter came on for hearing on 3 November 15, 2004, the Honorable Edward Rafeedie
 4 presiding. The Court has concluded that a pre-filing
 5 order is appropriate for the reasons discussed below.

6 Statement of Facts

7 a. Plaintiff's History of Litigation

8 Plaintiff Jarek Molski is a physically disabled
 9 individual who relies on a wheelchair for ambulation.
 10 Although he resides in Woodland Hills, he has filed 11 hundreds² of lawsuits in federal courts throughout the 12 state of California.

13 A review of the cases submitted to this Court 14 reveals that many are nearly identical in terms of the 15 facts alleged, the claims presented, and the damages
 16 requested. In virtually every complaint involving a 17 restaurant or winery, Molski initially reports having 18 trouble finding adequate van-accessible parking. Then, 19 almost uniformly, he reports difficulties entering the 20 business, often citing ramps that are too steep, or 21 doors that require more pressure to open than is

22

23 ² Defendant's Memorandum of Points and Authorities
 24 asserts that Molski has filed 334 lawsuits in the federal courts 25 since 1998. During the hearing, Plaintiff's counsel stated that 26 Molski had filed approximately 400 suits, and the Court will 27 accept that number. Despite this considerable number of filings, 28 Molski has never litigated a suit on the merits in the Central District of California. The vast majority of his claims settle, with a significant minority dismissed for lack of prosecution or violation of a court order.

1 permitted by law. After entering the business, Molski
 2 generally complains that the service counter is too
 3 high. Virtually every complaint ends with Molski
 4 venturing to the restroom, which inevitably suffers
 5 from at least one violation. Molski almost always 6 suffers some injury - typically to the upper 7 extremities - in the process of transferring himself
 8 from his wheelchair to the toilet. He also regularly
 9 complains of suffering humiliation or other emotional 10 distress from the experience. Molski's prayer for 11 relief routinely includes both a request for injunctive
 12 relief and damages of $4,000 per day, for each day
 13 after his visit until the facility is brought up to ADA 14 standards.

15 The facts of the instant case are predictably 16 similar. On January 25, 2003, Molski's complaint
 17 alleges that he had dinner at the Mandarin Touch
 18 Restaurant in Solvang, California. After dinner, 19 Molski attempted to use the restroom, but found that 20 the entrance was too narrow. Molski then alleges that,
 21 as he was attempting to leave the restroom, his hand 22 became "caught in the exterior door causing trauma to 23 it." The lawsuit asks for injunctive relief to bring 24 the restaurant up to ADA standards, and damages of not 25 less than $4,000 per day, for each day after his visit 26 until such time as the restaurant is made fully 27 accessible.

28

1 b. The Americans With Disabilities Act

2 The Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA"), 42
 3 U.S.C. § 12101, et seq., was signed into law in 1990.
 4 Its stated goal is to remedy discrimination against 5 individuals with disabilities.³ To that end, Title III
 6 of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12181, et seq., requires the 7 removal of structural barriers in existing public 8 accommodations "where such removal is readily 9 achievable."⁴ 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(2)(A)(iv). See also 10 28 C.F.R. § 36.304 (2004) (listing examples of, and 11 prioritizing, readily achievable repairs). Where 12 removal of the barrier is not readily achievable, the 13 facility must provide access "through alternative

14

³ The ADA states:

16

It is the purpose of this Act--

17

(1) to provide a clear and comprehensive national mandate for the elimination of discrimination against individuals with disabilities;

18

(2) to provide clear, strong, consistent, enforceable standards addressing discrimination against individuals with disabilities;

19

(3) to ensure that the Federal Government plays a central role in enforcing the standards established in this Act on behalf of individuals with disabilities; and 20

(4) to invoke the sweep of congressional authority, including the power to enforce the fourteenth amendment and to regulate commerce, in order to address the major areas of discrimination faced day-to-day by people with disabilities.

21

42 U.S.C. § 12101(b).

22

⁴ The ADA defines "readily achievable" as "easily accomplishable and able to be carried out without much difficulty or expense." 42 U.S.C. § 12181 (9).

1 methods if such methods are readily achievable." 42
 2 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(2)(A)(v).

3 To enforce Title III, the ADA contains both a
 4 private right of action, 42 U.S.C. § 12188(a), and a
 5 right of action for the Attorney General, 42 U.S.C. §
 6 12188(b). While the Attorney General may seek monetary
 7 damages on behalf of an aggrieved party, 42 U.S.C. §
 8 12188(b)(2)(B), the only remedies available under the 9 private right of action are injunctive relief and the 10 recovery of attorneys' fees and costs. 42 U.S.C. § 11 12188(a)(1); 42 U.S.C. § 2000a-3(a). By providing 12 different remedies for public and private enforcement, 13 Congress clearly demonstrated its intent to prevent 14 private plaintiffs from recovering money damages under 15 the ADA. American Bus Ass'n v. Slater, 231 F.3d 1, 5
 16 (D.C. Cir. 2000) ("By specifying the circumstances
 17 under which monetary relief will be available, Congress 18 evinced its intent that damages would be available in 19 no others.").

20 However, enterprising plaintiffs (and their 21 attorneys) have found a way to circumvent the will of 22 Congress by seeking money damages while retaining 23 federal jurisdiction. Because a violation of the ADA
 24 also constitutes a violation of California's Unruh 25 Civil Rights Act, Cal. Civ. Code § 51(f), and the 26 California Disabled Persons Act ("CDPA"), Cal. Civ.
 27 Code § 54(c), Plaintiffs can sue in federal court for 28 injunctive relief under the ADA, and tack on state law

1 claims for money damages under the Unruh Act and CDPA.
 2 See, e.g., Moeller v. Taco Bell Corp., 220 F.R.D. 604,
 3 607 (N.D. Cal. 2004).

4 The ability to profit from ADA litigation has given
 5 birth to what one Court described as "a cottage
 6 industry." Rodriguez v. Investco, L.L.C., 305 F. Supp.
 7 2d 1278, 1280-81 (M.D. Fla. 2004). The scheme is 8 simple: an unscrupulous law firm sends a disabled
 9 individual to as many businesses as possible, in order
 10 to have him aggressively seek out any and all 11 violations of the ADA. Then, rather than simply 12 informing a business of the violations, and attempting 13 to remedy the matter through "conciliation and 14 voluntary compliance," id. at 1281, a lawsuit is filed, 15 requesting damage awards that would put many of the 16 targeted establishments out of business. Faced with 17 the specter of costly litigation and a potentially 18 fatal judgment against them, most businesses quickly
 19 settle the matter.

20 The result of this scheme is that "the means for 21 enforcing the ADA (attorney's fees) have become more 22 important and desirable than the end (accessibility for 23 disabled individuals)." Brother v. Tiger Partner, LLC, 24 331 F. Supp. 2d 1368, 1375 (M.D. Fla. 2004). Serial
 25 plaintiffs, like Molski, serve as "professional pawn[s] 26 in an ongoing scheme to bilk attorney's fees." 27 Rodriguez, 305 F. Supp. 2d at 1285. It is a "type of 28 shotgun litigation [that] undermines both the spirit

1 and purpose of the ADA." Brother, 331 F. Supp. 2d at 2 1375.⁵

3 Analysis

4 a. Authority to Issue Pre-Filing Order

5 The District Court has the inherent power to levy
 6 sanctions in response to abusive litigation practices.
 7 See, e.g., Roadway Express, Inc. v. Piper, 447 U.S.
 8 752, 765-66 (1980). This inherent power is augmented
 9 by Local Rule 83-8, which empowers this Court to craft
 10 an appropriate sanction to defend against vexatious
 11 litigation, including, but not limited to, "a directive 12 to the Clerk not to accept further filings from the 13 litigant without payment of normal filing fees and/or 14 without written authorization from a judge of the Court 15 or a Magistrate Judge, issued upon such showing of the 16 evidence supporting the claim as the judge may 17 require."⁶ C.D. Cal. Local Rule 83-8.2.

18

19 ⁵ The Brother court expressed serious concerns about the 20 "vexatious litigation tactics" employed by serial ADA plaintiffs,
 21 and called upon the Congress to formulate a legislative solution 22 to the problem. 331 F. Supp. 2d at 1375. Pending legislative 23 reform, however, "[t]he appropriate mechanism for addressing 24 allegations of such behavior lies with the ethics and 25 disciplinary bodies of State bar associations or with the court where the litigation is pending." ADA Notification Act: Hearings on H.R. 3590, before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the House Comm. on the Judiciary (May 18, 2000), available at:
http://commdocs.house.gov/committees/judiciary/hju66728.000/hju66728_0.htm.

26

27 ⁶ Local Rule 83-8 also states:

28 It is the policy of the Court to discourage vexatious litigation and to provide persons who are subjected to vexatious litigation with security

SIGNED

1 b. Standard for Vexatious Litigant

2 In deciding whether or not to restrict a litigant's
 3 access to the courts, "[u]ltimately, the question the 4 court must answer is whether a litigant who has a 5 history of vexatious litigation is likely to continue
 6 to abuse the judicial process and harass other
 7 parties." Safir v. United States Lines, Inc., 792 F.2d 8 19, 23 (2nd Cir. 1986). In doing so, the Court should 9 look to five factors: (1) the litigant's history of 10 litigation and in particular whether it entailed 11 vexatious, harassing or duplicative lawsuits; (2) the 12 litigant's motive in pursuing the litigation, e.g., 13 does the litigant have an objective good faith 14 expectation of prevailing?; (3) whether the litigant is 15 represented by counsel; (4) whether the litigant has 16 caused needless expense to other parties or has posed 17 an unnecessary burden on the courts and their 18 personnel; and (5) whether other sanctions would be 19 adequate to protect the courts and other parties. See 20 id.

21 1. Litigant's History of Litigation

22 A "vexatious suit" is a "lawsuit instituted

24 against the costs of defending against such 25 litigation and appropriate orders to control such 26 litigation. It is the intent of this rule to 27 augment the inherent power of the Court to control 28 vexatious litigation and nothing in this rule shall be construed to limit the Court's inherent power in that regard.

C.D. Cal. Local Rule 83-8.1.

1 maliciously and without good cause." Black's Law
 2 Dictionary 1596 (8th ed. 2004). After examining 3 Plaintiff's extensive collection of lawsuits, the Court
 4 believes that most, if not all, were filed as part of a 5 scheme of systematic extortion, designed to harass and 6 intimidate business owners into agreeing to cash
 7 settlements.

8 The Court bases this determination on several 9 considerations. One is the sheer volume of lawsuits
 10 filed by this Plaintiff. Although litigiousness alone
 11 is insufficient to justify a restriction on filing
 12 activities, see In re Oliver, 682 F.2d 443, 446 (3rd 13 Cir. 1982), it is a factor the Court considers 14 indicative of an intent to harass. See De Long v.
Hennessey, 912 F.2d 1144, 1147 (9th Cir. 1990) (stating 15 that in order to issue a prefiling order, "[a]t the 16 least, the record needs to show, in some manner, that 17 the litigant's activities were numerous or abusive").
 18 Here, Molski's filing are plainly numerous, and, as 19 discussed throughout this order, abusive as well.

20 Another consideration is the textual and factual
 21 similarity of the complaints filed by Plaintiff. This 22 too, while not dispositive, is a factor the Court
 23 considers indicative of an intent to harass, as it
 24 suggests that Plaintiff is filing boilerplate 25 complaints. See In re Powell, 851 F.2d 427, 431 (D.C.
 26 Cir. 1988) (stating that "the district court should 27 attempt to discern whether the filing of several

1 similar types of actions constitutes an intent to 2 harass the defendant or the court").
3

4 Most important, however, is the Court's conclusion
5 that the allegations contained in Plaintiff's
6 complaints are contrived and not credible. Although it
7 is not obvious when looking at an individual complaint, 8 examining Plaintiff's complaints in the aggregate reveals a clear intent to harass businesses.

9 For example, in Molski v. El 7 Mares Restaurant, 10 Case No. C04-1882 (N.D. Cal. 2004), Molski claims that,
11 on May 20, 2003, he and significant other, Brygida 12 Molski, attended the El 7 Mares Restaurant for the 13 purposes of dining out. Molski alleges that the 14 restaurant lacked adequate handicapped parking, and 15 that the food counter was too high. After the meal, 16 Molski attempted to use the restroom, but because the 17 toilet's grab bars were improperly installed, he 18 injured his shoulders in the process of transferring 19 himself from his wheelchair to the toilet. Thereafter, 20 he was unable to wash his hands because of the lavatory's design.

22 Although this complaint appears credible standing 23 alone, its validity is undermined when viewed alongside 24 Molski's other complaints. In Molski v. Casa De Fruta, 25 L.P., Case No. C04-1981 (N.D. Cal. 2004), Molski
26 alleges that he sustained nearly identical injuries on 27 the exact same day, May 20, 2003. In Casa de Fruta,
28 Molski alleges that he and significant other, Brygida

1 Molski, patronized Casa de Fruta for the purpose of 2 wine tasting. On arrival, Molski was again unable to 3 locate van accessible parking. Once inside, Molski
4 again found the counter to be too high. After wine
5 tasting, Molski again decided to use the restroom, and 6 again, injured his upper extremities while in the 7 process of transferring himself to the toilet.
8 Thereafter, he was once again unable to wash his hands
9 due to the design of the lavatory.

10 This was, apparently, not the end of Molski's day.
11 In Molski v. Rapazzini Winery, Case No. C04-1881 (N.D.
12 Cal. 2004), Molski once again alleges that he sustained
13 nearly identical injuries on the exact same day, May 14 20, 2003. Molski, again accompanied by Brygida Molski, 15 claims he visited the Rapazzini Winery for the purpose 16 of wine tasting. Again, Molski complains that the 17 parking lot lacked adequate handicapped van accessible 18 parking. Upon entering the establishment, he 19 discovered that the counter was too high. After 20 tasting wine, he again needed to use the restroom. In 21 the course of transferring himself from his wheelchair
22 to the toilet, he injured himself yet again.
23 Thereafter, he was again unable to wash his hands due 24 to the lavatory's design.

25 The Court is tempted to exclaim: "what a lousy 26 day!" It would be highly unusual - to say the least - 27 for anyone to sustain two injuries, let alone three, in 28 a single day, each of which necessitated a separate

1 federal lawsuit. But in Molski's case, May 20, 2003,
 2 was simply business as usual. Molski filed 13 separate
 3 complaints for essentially identical injuries sustained
 4 between May 19, 2003 and May 23, 2003. The Court 5 simply does not believe that Molski suffered 13 nearly 6 identical injuries, generally to the same part of his 7 body, in the course of performing the same activity, 8 over a five-day period. This is to say nothing of the 9 hundreds of other lawsuits Molski has filed over the 10 last four years, many of which make nearly identical 11 allegations. The record before this Court leads it to 12 conclude that these suits were filed maliciously, in 13 order to extort a cash settlement.

14 It is possible, even likely, that many of the 15 businesses sued were not in full compliance with the 16 ADA. However, "[f]or purposes of imposing sanctions
 17 under the inherent power of the court, a finding of bad
 18 faith 'does not require that the legal and factual
 19 basis for the action prove totally frivolous; where a 20 litigant is substantially motivated by vindictiveness,
 21 obduracy, or mala fides, the assertion of a colorable
 22 claim will not bar the assessment of [sanctions].'" 23 Fink v. Gomez, 239 F.3d 989, 992 (9th Cir.
 24 2001) (citations omitted). See also Vollmer v. Selden, 25 350 F.3d 656, 660 (7th Cir. 2003) (a non-frivolous

 26 filing may be sanctionable if filed for an improper 27 purpose, such as extortion). So, even if the 28 businesses sued by Molski were in violation of the ADA,

1 this fact is outweighed by the Court's finding that he 2 acted in bad faith, for the improper purpose of 3 extorting a settlement. The Court therefore finds that 4 Molski has a considerable history of vexatious
 5 litigation. See Brother, 331 F. Supp. 2d at 1375
 6 (describing a similar pattern of "shotgun" ADA 7 litigation, designed to extort attorneys' fees, as 8 "vexatious litigation").

9 2. Litigant's Motive

10 The next factor to be considered is the litigant's 11 motive in bringing the lawsuit. Molski claims that his 12 motivation was to obtain injunctive relief, and that 13 the funds recovered were largely used to offset his 14 legal expenses. But this explanation is undercut by 15 his course of action. The ADA itself allows private 16 plaintiffs to sue for injunctive relief, and to recover 17 their attorneys' fees and costs. It does not allow for 18 any award of money damages to a private plaintiff. If 19 Molski's motivation was genuinely to obtain injunctive
 20 relief and recover his legal costs, he could sue 21 entirely under the ADA. But he does not do that.
 22 Instead, Molski almost always raises additional state
 23 law claims under the CDPA, California Health & Safety
 24 Code, the Unruh Civil Rights Act, and California Bus. &
 25 Prof. Code § 17200, which allow for the recovery of 26 money damages.

27 Clearly, raising multiple claims, by itself, is not 28 unethical or vexatious. However, it is consistent with

1 an overall pattern of behavior that demonstrates
 2 Molski's motivation is, ultimately, to extract a cash
 3 settlement. The threat of significant money damages⁷ is 4 a much more effective inducement to settle than merely 5 requesting a court order to make "readily achievable"
 6 repairs. And that threat appears to be working.
 7 Almost as startling as the sheer number of complaints
 8 Molski has filed, is the number of those claims that 9 settle. Of the hundreds of cases Molski has filed in 10 this district, not one has ever been litigated on the 11 merits. The overwhelming majority settle, with a 12 significant minority dismissed for violation of a court 13 order, or failure to prosecute the claim. This not 14 only calls into question Molski's good faith
 15 expectation of prevailing on the merits of his claim, 16 but also suggests that he does not even have a 17 reasonable expectation (or intention) of litigating the 18 suit on the merits.⁸ Molski's m.o. is clear: sue,
 19 settle, and move on to the next suit.

20

22 ⁷ And the damages requested are quite significant. Molski
 23 routinely asks for $4,000 per day, for every day from his visit
 24 until the repairs are completed. And Molski often waits a year 25 or more before filing suit. In the instant case, the purported violation took place on January 25, 2003, but the suit was not filed until January 23, 2004. That delay alone would be worth $1,452,000 if Molski received the damages requested.

26

27

28

⁸ Additionally, given Molski's considerable history of making questionable claims, a jury could reasonably refuse to credit his testimony. This further weakens the likelihood of Molski prevailing on the merits of his claims.

1 3. Representation By Counsel

2 The next factor is whether or not Molski is 3 represented by counsel. Molski has been represented by 4 counsel in every lawsuit that this Court is aware of.
5 Although courts are generally protective of pro se 6 litigants, this same protection does not apply to 7 litigants represented by counsel, and thus, this factor
8 also weighs against Plaintiff. See Iwachiw v. N.Y. City
9 Bd. of Elections, 273 F. Supp. 2d 224, 228 (E.D. N.Y.
10 2003).

11 4. Burden on the Courts

12 The fourth factor is whether Plaintiff has caused 13 needless expense to other parties or unnecessarily
14 burdened the courts. Because Plaintiff has filed a 15 countless number of vexatious claims, the Court
16 believes this factor plainly weighs against him.

17 5. Adequacy of Other Sanctions

18 The final factor is whether sanctions, other than a 19 pre-filing order, could adequately protect the court
20 and other parties. For the reasons already discussed, 21 the Court believes the answer is no. As noted above,
22 Plaintiff's filings appear meritorious when examined
23 individually. Their vexatious nature is revealed only 24 when viewed in the aggregate. Thus, the only effective
25 way to put a reviewing judge on notice of Plaintiff's 26 history is to require Molski to file a copy of this 27 order with every new complaint that he seeks to file.
28 This would allow the reviewing judge to assess whether

1 Molski had raised a bona fide claim of discrimination
2 under the ADA, or whether he was merely bringing 3 another vexatious claim in order to strong arm a 4 business into settling. See, e.g., In re Billy Roy 5 Tyler, 839 F.2d 1290, 1293-94 (8th Cir. 1988) (per 6 curiam) (holding that a pre-filing order is appropriate
7 where petitioner was able to consistently dress up
8 frivolous claims so that, on the face of the complaint, 9 they appeared to be meritorious).

10 Conclusions

11 The Court is convinced that a pre-filing order is 12 justified and necessary to prevent Molski from filing
13 any further vexatious complaints. The Court has no
14 doubt that Molski's "shotgun litigation" tactics
15 "undermine[] both the spirit and purpose of the ADA."
16 In addition to misusing a noble law, Molski has plainly 17 lied in his filings to this Court. His claims of being 18 the innocent victim of hundreds of physical and 19 emotional injuries over the last four years defy belief 20 and common sense.

21 But Molski has not acted alone. In every action, 22 Molski is aided and abetted by his attorneys, often the 23 Thomas E. Frankovich Law Offices, and his corporate co-
24 Plaintiff, Disability Rights Enforcement Education
25 Services: Helping You Help Others ("DREES").⁹ For that

26 _____
27 ⁹ The Court notes that it has at least one other case 28 currently before it involving DREES and the Frankovich firm. The named plaintiff in that case is Les Jankey. Jankey v. Yang Chow

1 reason, this Court is also issuing orders to show cause
2 why the Court should not exercise its inherent power to 3 extend similar sanctions to them, for their role in 4 facilitating Molski's abusive litigation practices.¹⁰

5 The Court is also troubled by the fact that Molski
6 raises a federal ADA claim in the federal courts, while 7 seeking a remedy, money damages, exclusively available 8 under state law.¹¹ Even if proven, the ADA claim would 9 not entitle Molski to any relief that is not already 10 available under state law. Additionally, the burden of 11 proving an ADA claim is necessarily at least as high as 12 proving a violation to the California statutes, as a 13 violation of the ADA constitutes a prima facie
14 violation of those statutes. Thus, the ADA claims do 15 not extend Molski any benefit in terms of the 16 litigation itself, or the remedies he may seek, other 17 than allowing him to proceed in the federal courts.

18 For that reason, the Court believes that Molski's
19 ADA claims are a sham, used as a pretext to gain access 20 to the federal courts, while he pursues remedies that

21 _____
22 Restaurant, CV 03-2239 (C.D. Cal. 2003). While less prolific
23 than Molski, the Court's computer docketing program reveals that 24 Jankey has filed 36 claims in the Central District, including 21 cases filed in 2004 alone. In each of these cases, Jankey was represented by the Frankovich firm, and DREES is a co-plaintiff.

25 ¹⁰ The Court will also issue an order to show cause why 26 DREES's claims should not be dismissed for a lack of standing.

27 ¹¹ Although Molski does seek injunctive relief and attorneys' fees under the ADA, he also requests them as part of 28 his state law claims.

1 are available - sometimes exclusively - under 2 California state law. Therefore, the Court will also 3 issue an order to show cause why Molski's ADA complaint
 4 should not be dismissed, and his remaining claims
 5 remanded back to state court, for lack of subject
 6 matter jurisdiction.

7 Sadly, Molski is not unique. The Trevor Law Group,
 8 and others like it, have achieved infamy in California
 9 for carrying out a similar scheme under California's 10 Unfair Business Practices statute, Bus. & Prof. Code §
 11 17200 et seq. As one Court described it:

12 The abuse is a kind of legal shakedown
 13 scheme: Attorneys form a front "watchdog"
 14 or "consumer" organization. They scour
 15 public records on the Internet for what are 16 often ridiculously minor violations of some 17 regulation or law by a small business, and 18 sue that business in the name of the front
 19 organization. Since even frivolous lawsuits 20 can have economic nuisance value, the attorneys then contact the business (often owned by immigrants for whom English is a second language), and point out that a quick settlement (usually around a few thousand dollars) would be in the business's long-term interest.

21 People ex rel. Lockyer v. Brar, 115 Cal.
 22 App. 4th 1315, 1316-17 (2004).

23 These words could apply, almost verbatim, to the 24 scheme perpetrated by Molski, DREES, and the Frankovich 25 firm. And this Court is not unmindful of the result of 26 the Trevor Law Group's abuse of the Unfair Business 27 Practices statute. In the most recent election, the 28 citizens of California overwhelmingly backed Proposition 64, which greatly limited the private attorney general provision of that law. It is not

1 beyond the realm of belief that the actions of Molski,
 2 and those like him, pose a similar threat to the ADA.

3 Thus, this pre-filing order serves as a bulwark
 4 that not only shields the Court and defendants from 5 vexatious litigation, but also protects the "purpose 6 and spirit of the ADA." It does not limit the right of 7 a legitimately aggrieved disabled individual to seek 8 legal relief under the ADA; it only prevents abuse of 9 that law by professional plaintiffs, like Molski, and 10 their lawyers, such as the Frankovich firm, whose 11 priority is their own financial gain, and not "the 12 elimination of discrimination against individuals with 13 disabilities." 42 U.S.C. § 12101(b)(1).

14 For all of these reasons, the Court finds that 15 Jarek Molski is a vexatious litigant. Before filing 16 any new litigation alleging violations of Title III of 17 the ADA in the United States District Court for the 18 Central District of California, Molski is hereby 19 ordered to file a motion for leave to file a complaint.
 20 Molski must submit a copy of this order and a copy of 21 the proposed filing with every motion for leave. This 22 will allow a reviewing judge to assess whether the 23 proposed filing is made in good faith, or is simply 24 another attempt to extort a settlement.

25 Rule 11 Sanctions

26 Defendant has also requested sanctions under Rule
 27 11. At this point, the Court has not made any formal 28 determination regarding the merits of the instant case,

1 and as such, Rule 11 sanctions would be premature. The 2 request for sanctions is therefore DENIED.

OPINIONPER CURIAM:

This appeal presents two orders of the district court for our review. The first order declared Jarek Molski a vexatious litigant and ordered that Molski obtain leave of the court before filing any claims under Title III of the Americans With Disabilities Act (“ADA”) in the United States District Court for the Central District of California. The second order sanctioned the law firm representing Molski, Thomas E. Frankovich, a Professional Law Corporation (“the Frankovich Group”), by requiring it to obtain leave of the court before filing any claims under Title III of the ADA in the Central District of California. We dismiss two of the defendants-appellees from this appeal for lack of jurisdiction. As to the remaining parties, we hold that the district court acted within its sound discretion in entering the pre-filing orders against Molski and against the Frankovich Group, and we affirm the orders of the district court.

I

Molski, who is paralyzed from the chest down, needs a wheelchair to get around. He has filed about 400 lawsuits in the federal courts within the districts in California. Molski lives in Woodland Hills, California, but frequently travels. According to Molski’s amended complaint in this case, during his travels, he stopped at the Mandarin Touch Restaurant in Solvang, California on January 25, 2003. After finishing his meal, Molski decided to use the restroom. Molski was able to pass through the narrow restroom door, but there was not enough clear space to permit him to access the toilet from his wheelchair. Molski then exited the restroom, and in the course of doing so, got his hand caught in the restroom door, “causing trauma” to his hand. Molski’s amended complaint also alleged that Mandarin Touch contained other accessibility barriers “too numerous to list.”

Asserting claims under the ADA and California law, Molski, along with co-plaintiff Disability Rights Enforcement, Education Services: Helping You Help Others (“DREES”), a non-profit corporation, sought injunctive relief, attorneys’ fees and costs, and damages. Specifically, the complaint sought “daily damages of not less than $4,000/day . . . for each day after [Molski’s] visit until such time as the restaurant is made fully accessible” as well as punitive damages and pre-judgment interest. The amended complaint named as defendants Mandarin Touch Restaurant, Evergreen Dynasty Corp., and Brian and Kathy McInerney.

Shortly after the defendants answered the complaint, Mandarin Touch and Evergreen Dynasty filed a motion for an order (1) declaring Molski a vexatious litigant; (2) requiring Molski to obtain the court’s permission before filing any more complaints under the ADA; and (3) imposing monetary sanctions against Molski and his counsel, Thomas E. Frankovich. Defendants Brian and Kathy McInerney did not join the motion. In a published order, the district court granted the motion in part, declaring Molski a vexatious litigant and granting the defendants’ request for a pre-filing order. Molski v. Mandarin Touch Rest., 347 F. Supp. 2d 860, 868 (C.D. Cal. 2004) [hereinafter Mandarin Touch I].

In determining that Molski was a vexatious litigant, the district court applied the five factors set forth in the opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Safir v. United States Lines, Inc., 792 F.2d 19, 24 (2d Cir. 1986). Those factors are: (1) the litigant’s history of litigation and in particular whether it entailed vexatious, harassing, or duplicative suits; (2) the litigant's motive in pursuing the litigation, for example, whether the litigant had a good faith expectation of prevailing; (3) whether the litigant is represented by counsel; (4) whether the litigant has caused unnecessary expense to the parties or placed a needless burden on the courts; and (5) whether other sanctions would be adequate to protect the courts and other parties. Id.

The district court first noted that Molski had an extensive history of litigation. Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 864. While acknowledging that the fact that a plaintiff has filed a large number of suits, standing alone, does not warrant a pre-filing order, the district court noted that a large volume of suits might indicate an intent to harass defendants into agreeing to cash settlements. Id. The district court also noted that Molski's complaints were all textually and factually similar. Id. While again not entirely dispositive, the district court surmised that boilerplate complaints might indicate an intent to harass defendants. Id.

Against this background, the district court's reasoning made clear that the most important consideration was its specific finding that the allegations in Molski's numerous and similar complaints were "contrived and not credible." See id. The court stressed that Molski often filed multiple complaints against separate establishments asserting that Molski had suffered identical injuries at each establishment on the same day. Id. at 865. The district court pointed out that Molski had filed thirteen separate complaints for essentially identical injuries allegedly sustained during one five-day period in May 2003. Id. In particular, Molski had alleged that, at each establishment, he injured his "upper extremities" while transferring himself to a non-ADA-compliant toilet. See id. at 864-65. The district court explicitly found that, in making these duplicitous injury claims, Molski had "plainly lied" in his filings to the court because the district court "simply [did] not believe that Molski suffered 13 nearly identical injuries, generally to the same part of his body, in the course of performing the same activity, over a five-day period.” Id. at 865, 867.

Applying the second Safir factor, the district court concluded that Molski’s motivation in bringing numerous suits alleging both violations of the ADA and California state civil rights laws was to extract cash settlements from defendants. Id. at 866-67. Although the ADA grants private plaintiffs like Molski only the rights to seek injunctive relief, attorneys’ fees, and costs, the California state civil rights laws amplify the scope of relief available under federal law by also permitting the recovery of money damages. Compare 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000a-3(a), 12188(a)(1), with Cal. Civ. Code §§ 51(f), 52(a), 54(c), 54.3(a); see also Moeller v. Taco Bell Corp., 220 F.R.D. 604, 606-07 (N.D. Cal. 2004) (discussing the remedies available under California law). The district court acknowledged that raising multiple claims in one suit is, in and of itself, not vexatious. Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 866. However, because Molski had tried on the merits only one of his approximately 400 suits and had settled all the others, the district court concluded that Molski’s consistent approach was to use the threat of money damages under California law to extract cash settlements and move on to his next case. Id.

Applying the third factor from Safir, the district court found that Molski had been represented by counsel in every suit he filed. Id. The court wrote that “courts are generally protective of pro se litigants,” but reasoned that “this same protection does not apply to litigants represented by counsel,” and concluded that this factor also weighed in favor of issuing a pre-filing order. Id.

Under the fourth Safir factor, the district court determined that the large number of vexatious claims Molski had filed had placed an undue burden on the courts. Id.

Finally, applying the fifth factor from Safir, the district court found that the only effective way to protect the courts and other parties from future vexatious litigation by Molski was by entering a pre-filing order. Id. Accordingly, the district court held that, “[b]efore filing any new litigation alleging violations of Title III of the ADA in the United States District Court for the Central District of California, Molski [must] file a motion for leave to file a complaint.” Id. at 868. The court required that Molski “submit a copy of this order and a copy of the proposed filing with every motion for leave.” Id.

In the same order, the district court denied the motion of Evergreen Dynasty and Mandarin Touch for sanctions as premature. Id. Finally, the district court issued an order to show cause why it should not impose a pre-filing sanction on Molski’s attorneys, the Frankovich Group. Id. at 867.

About three months later, the district court issued a published memorandum decision regarding that order to show cause. See Molski v. Mandarin Touch Rest., 359 F. Supp. 2d 924 (C.D. Cal. 2005) [hereinafter Mandarin Touch II]. The district court imposed a pre-filing order on the Frankovich Group similar to the order that it had imposed on Molski. Id. at 926. In its decision, the district court first observed that in 2004 the Frankovich Group filed at least 223 nearly identical lawsuits in the Northern and Central Districts of California, that the complaints all stated an ADA claim and the same four claims under California state law, that the damages requested in each case were identical and that, other than superficial alteration of the names and facts, the complaints were textually identical down to the typos. Id. The district court also noted that plaintiffs represented by the Frankovich Group would often file multiple complaints regarding similar or identical injuries sustained at multiple establishments on a single day. See id. at 926-27. The district court noted that one-third of the suits were against ethnic restaurants and commented that “such establishments are seen as easy prey for coercive claims.” Id. at 926.

Supplementing its findings from its decision accompanying the pre-filing order entered against Molski, the district court found that the Frankovich Group had filed sixteen lawsuits on Molski's behalf alleging injuries sustained over a four-day period from May 20, 2003 to May 23, 2003, all alleging that Molski suffered injuries to his upper extremities as a result of transfers or negotiating barriers. Id. at 928. The district court also noted that, on thirty-seven occasions in 2004 alone, Molski alleged that he had been injured two or more times on the same day. Id. On nineteen occasions, Molski alleged that he had been injured three or more times in one day. Id. And, on nine occasions in 2004, Molski alleged that he suffered four or more injuries in one day. Id.

Additionally, the district court discussed what it characterized as an "astonishing" letter the Frankovich Group had sent to defendants in at least two cases after suing them. See id. at 928. The letter described itself as "friendly advice" and counseled the unrepresented defendant against hiring a lawyer. Id. The letter warned that a defense attorney would embark on a "billing expedition" and that the defendant's money would be best spent on settlement and remediation of the ADA violations, rather than hiring a defense attorney. Id. The letter also advised the defendant that its insurance policy might cover the claim. Id. Finally, the letter advised the defendant that it had no bona fide defense to the lawsuit. Id.

Relying on its inherent power to levy sanctions, the district court ordered that The Frankovich Group, as presently constituted, and as it may hereafter be constituted, including shareholders, associates and employees, is required to file a motion requesting leave of court before filing any new complaints alleging violations of Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act in the United States District Court for the Central District of California. Such a motion must include a copy of this order.

11064 MOLSKI v. EVERGREEN DYNASTY CORP.

Id. at 926.

As the basis for its sanction, the court first emphasized the ethics rules violations contained in the letter discussed above. Id. at 929. For example, the letter offered legal advice to an unrepresented party whose interests conflicted with the interests of the Frankovich Group's clients. Id. (citing Model Rules of Prof'l Conduct R. 4.3).

Next, the district court found that many of the claims of bodily injury in complaints filed by the Frankovich Group were "contrived." Id. at 930. The court found in particular that "the rate of physical injury defies common sense," noting that the plaintiffs alleged similar injuries sustained in a similar fashion at different businesses on the same day. Id. The court noted that the similar injuries did not excuse the existence of accessibility barriers, but that its finding that the injury claims were contrived was "merely a recognition of the fact that reasonable people, once injured, tend to take affirmative steps to avoid similar physical injuries, rather than repeat that same activity 400 times (or five times in the same day)." Id. at 931.

The district court also criticized the practice of the Frankovich Group of waiting one year before filing their complaints, in order to maximize the damages threatened and to intimidate the small businesses against whom the Frankovich Group frequently filed its suits. Id. at 932.

Finally, the district court found that the high settlement rate in cases brought by the Frankovich Group, coupled with the volume of cases filed, showed a pattern of extortion. Id. at 933-34.

In addition to imposing a pre-filing order on the Frankovich Group, the district court requested that the California state bar investigate the Frankovich Group's practices and consider disciplinary action. Id. In the same order, the district court dismissed the plaintiffs' state law claims, declining to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over them. Id. at 937.

On August 31, 2005, the district court, in a third published order, granted the defendants summary judgment on Molski's ADA claim for lack of standing. Molski v. Mandarin Touch Rest., 385 F. Supp. 2d 1042, 1044 (C.D. Cal. 2005). Because Molski's ADA claim was the final claim remaining in the case, the district court also entered an order dismissing with prejudice the plaintiffs' case in its entirety. Id. at 1048. (The district court had already dismissed DRESS's ADA claim for lack of standing in an unpublished order filed on February 9, 2005.)

On September 13, 2005, Molski and DREES filed their notice of appeal. The notice provided that the plaintiffs were appealing four rulings of the district court: (1) the December 2004 order declaring Molski a vexatious litigant; (2) the February 2005 order dismissing DREES's ADA claim for lack of standing; (3) the March 2005 order sanctioning the Frankovich Group;¹ and (4) the August 2005 order granting the defendants summary judgment on Molski's ADA claim for lack of standing and dismissing the case.

II

We first address whether the appeal of the pre-filing orders

¹In the notice of appeal and in their brief to this court, the Frankovich Group characterizes the order entered against it as an order declaring it a "vexatious litigant." The Frankovich Group characterizes the order in this fashion likely because we have held that "an attorney appearing on behalf of a client cannot be sanctioned as a vexatious litigant; by definition, he or she is acting as an attorney and not as a litigant." Weissman v. Quail Lodge, Inc., 179 F.3d 1194, 1197 (9th Cir. 1999). However, the district court's order is an order imposing sanctions. In its order, the district court repeatedly refers to its inherent power to levy sanctions against attorneys who abuse the litigation process. See Mandarin Touch II, 359 F. Supp. 2d at 928-29.

is timely. 28 U.S.C. § 2107(a) and Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 4(a)(1)(A) provide that the notice of appeal in a civil case must be filed with the district court clerk within thirty days after the judgment or order appealed from is entered. If a party does not file a notice of appeal within the prescribed time limits, we have no jurisdiction to hear the case. Bowles v. Russell, 127 S. Ct. 2360, 2363-64 (2007).

Under 28 U.S.C. § 1291, parties may appeal to this court only “final decisions” of the district courts. A final decision is one that “ends the litigation on the merits and leaves nothing for the court to do but execute the judgment.” Cunningham v. Hamilton County, 527 U.S. 198, 204 (1999) (internal quotation marks omitted); Catlin v. United States, 324 U.S. 229, 233 (1945). Neither party disputes that the August 31, 2005 order dismissing the case was an appealable final decision. However, the McInerneys argue that the December 2004 pre-filing order entered against Molski and the March 2005 pre-filing order entered against the Frankovich Group were also final decisions and therefore immediately appealable. They maintain we must dismiss the appeal because the notice of appeal, filed on September 13, 2005, was filed more than thirty days after the entry of the pre-filing orders. Conversely, Molski and the Frankovich Group argue that the only final decision in this case is the district court’s August 31, 2005 order dismissing the plaintiffs’ case in its entirety and that, because they filed a notice of appeal within thirty days of the entry of that order, their appeal is timely.

[1] The appeal of the Frankovich Group is timely under the Supreme Court’s decision in Cunningham and our subsequent decision in Stanley v. Woodford, 449 F.3d 1060 (9th Cir. 2006). In Cunningham, the Supreme Court held that an order imposing sanctions on an attorney pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37(a)(4) was not an immediately-appealable “final decision.” 527 U.S. at 200. In Stanley, we extended Cunningham and held that we do not have jurisdiction to entertain interlocutory appeals of district court orders sanctioning attorneys pursuant to the district court's inherent power to levy sanctions.² Stanley, 449 F.3d at 1065. In this case, the district court entered the pre-filing order against the Frankovich Group under its inherent sanctioning power. Mandarin Touch II, 359 F. Supp. 2d at 928. Because the Frankovich Group could not immediately appeal the pre-filing order entered against it, and because it filed its notice of appeal within thirty days of the district court's August 31, 2005 order dismissing the entire case, its appeal is timely.

[2] Molski's appeal is also timely. As a general matter, a district court order imposing sanctions on a party is not appealable before the entry of a final judgment. See Riverhead Sav. Bank v. Nat'l Mortg. Equity Corp., 893 F.2d 1109, 1113 (9th Cir. 1990); Johnny Pflocks, Inc. v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., 634 F.2d 1215, 1216 (9th Cir. 1980). However, we have not previously and specifically addressed whether pre-filing orders entered against vexatious litigants are immediately-appealable final decisions. As far as we can tell, no other circuit has considered this question either. We begin with the general presumption that "an appeal ordinarily will not lie until after final judgment has been entered in a case." Cunningham, 527 U.S. at 203. For vexatious litigant orders to be appealable immediately, then, those orders would have to fall within the small category of decisions in which appeal is grounded on the collateral order doctrine which permits immediate appeal of orders that are conclusive and that cannot be effectively reviewed on the appeal of the final judgment. Swint v. Chambers County Comm'n, 514 U.S. 35, 42 (1995).

²Prior to Cunningham, we had permitted interlocutory appeals of sanctions orders entered against attorneys. See, e.g., Telluride Mgmt. Solutions, Inc. v. Telluride Inv. Group, 55 F.3d 463, 465 (9th Cir. 1995); Reygo Pac. Corp. v. Johnston Pump Co., 680 F.2d 647, 648 (9th Cir. 1982); see also Stanley, 449 F.3d at 1063 (noting that "Cunningham effectively overruled earlier Ninth Circuit decisions allowing immediate appeal by attorneys from orders imposing sanctions").

[3] As we see it, pre-filing orders entered against vexatious litigants are not conclusive and can be reviewed and corrected (if necessary) after final judgment. Though during the pendency of the appeal, the order might delay or prohibit a litigant from filing claims without leave of court, we have the authority to vacate the order entirely if we conclude the order was unjustified on the merits. Johnny Pflocks, 634 F.2d at 1216. Moreover, allowing immediate appeals of pre-filing orders would permit piecemeal appeals and result in a costly succession of appeals from the district court's rulings before entry of final judgment. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. v. Risjord, 449 U.S. 368, 374 (1981). We see no good reason to part ways from our case law holding that sanctions orders entered against a party are not immediately appealable, and we hold that pre-filing orders entered against vexatious litigants are also not immediately appealable. Because Molski filed his notice of appeal within thirty days of the district court's August 31, 2005 order dismissing the plaintiffs' entire case, Molski's appeal is timely.

III

[4] Before we address the merits of the pre-filing orders, we must address a second jurisdictional issue. Brian and Kathy McInerney ask us to dismiss them from this appeal because they were not parties to the motion that led to the pre-filing orders entered against Molski and the Frankovich Group. Because Article III limits our jurisdiction to "cases" and "controversies," we dismiss appeals as moot when "the parties lack a cognizable interest in the outcome of the suit." H.C. v. Koppel, 203 F.3d 610, 612 (9th Cir. 2000); see City of Erie v. Pap's A.M., 529 U.S. 277, 287 (2000); Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 496 (1969). As noted above, the plaintiffs initially appealed four rulings of the district court: the two pre-filing orders and the two orders dismissing Molski and DREES's claims for lack of standing. However, in their briefs, Molski and the Frankovich Group limit their arguments to the two pre-filing orders entered against them.³ The McInerneys were not a party to the motion that led to the pre-filing orders that now form the sole basis of the appeal in this case. See Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 861. The McInerneys thus have no cognizable interest in whether we affirm or vacate the pre-filing orders, and there is no justiciable dispute between the McInerneys and Molski and the Frankovich Group. We dismiss Brian and Kathy McInerney from this appeal for lack of jurisdiction.

IV

We next address whether the district court erred in declaring Molski a vexatious litigant and in entering a pre-filing order against him. Two district courts in our circuit disagree about whether Molski's frequent litigation is vexatious. In this case, the Central District of California deemed Molski a vexatious litigant. See Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 868. However, the Northern District of California has denied a motion to declare Molski a vexatious litigant in that district. See Molski v. Rapazzini Winery, 400 F. Supp. 2d 1208, 1212 (N.D. Cal. 2005). We review a pre-filing order entered against a vexatious litigant for abuse of discretion. De Long v. Hennessey, 912 F.2d 1144, 1146 (9th Cir. 1990). A district court abuses its discretion when it bases its decision on an incorrect view of the law or a clearly erroneous finding of fact. United States v. Finley, 301 F.3d 1000, 1007 (9th Cir. 2002); Does 1-5 v. Chandler, 83 F.3d 1150, 1152 (9th Cir. 1996).

The All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a), provides district

³In their reply brief, Molski and the Frankovich Group state:

Since the filing of their Notice of Appeal, appellants have narrowed the issues for appeal, and through their opening brief seek this Court's review of two of the lower court's orders—the order deeming appellant Jarek Molski a vexatious litigant and the order imposing a pre-filing petition sanction on appellant Thomas E. Frankovich, A Professional Law Corporation.

courts with the inherent power to enter pre-filing orders against vexatious litigants. Weissman v. Quail Lodge Inc., 179 F.3d 1194, 1197 (9th Cir. 1999). However, such pre-filing orders are an extreme remedy that should rarely be used. De Long, 912 F.2d at 1147. Courts should not enter pre-filing orders with undue haste because such sanctions can tread on a litigant's due process right of access to the courts. Cromer v. Kraft Foods N. Am., Inc., 390 F.3d 812, 817 (4th Cir. 2004); Moy v. United States, 906 F.2d 467, 470 (9th Cir. 1990); see also Logan v. Zimmerman Brush Co., 455 U.S. 422, 429 (1982) (noting that the Supreme Court "traditionally has held that the Due Process Clauses protect civil litigants who seek recourse in the courts, either as defendants hoping to protect their property or as plaintiffs attempting to redress grievances"); 5A Charles Alan Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1336.3, at 698 (3d ed. 2004). A court should enter a pre-filing order constraining a litigant's scope of actions in future cases only after a cautious review of the pertinent circumstances.

Nevertheless, "[f]lagrant abuse of the judicial process cannot be tolerated because it enables one person to preempt the use of judicial time that properly could be used to consider the meritorious claims of other litigants." De Long, 912 F.2d at 1148; see O'Loughlin v. Doe, 920 F.2d 614, 618 (9th Cir. 1990). Thus, in De Long, we outlined four factors for district courts to examine before entering pre-filing orders. First, the litigant must be given notice and a chance to be heard before the order is entered. De Long, 912 F.2d at 1147. Second, the district court must compile "an adequate record for review." Id. at 1148. Third, the district court must make substantive findings about the frivolous or harassing nature of the plaintiff's litigation. Id. Finally, the vexatious litigant order "must be narrowly tailored to closely fit the specific vice encountered." Id.

The district court in this case did not apply the factors we outlined in De Long. Instead, the district court looked to Second Circuit case law for guidance, applying that circuit's vexatious litigant standard as outlined in Safir. See Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 863-64. Molski argues that the district court erred by structuring its analysis around the Safir factors rather than the factors we have identified.

[5] One district court in our circuit has correctly observed that the Safir factors "have never been adopted by the Ninth Circuit." Doran v. Vicorp Rests., Inc., 407 F. Supp. 2d 1115, 1117 n.3 (C.D. Cal. 2005); see also Wilson v. Pier 1 Imports (US), Inc., 411 F. Supp. 2d 1196, 1198 (E.D. Cal. 2006) (noting that the Ninth Circuit has developed a vexatious litigant standard separate from Safir). However, the Second Circuit's standard is not irreconcilable with our standard, but rather can be viewed as a tool for analyzing some of the factors we set forth in De Long, insofar as Safir and De Long in substance cover much of the same ground. As we noted above, we held in De Long that district courts considering imposing a pre-filing order on a vexatious litigant should consider four factors. The first two requirements, (1) notice and an opportunity to be heard and (2) the creation of an adequate record, are procedural considerations—that is, the factors define "[a] specific method or course of action" that district courts should use to assess whether to declare a party a vexatious litigant and enter a pre-filing order. Black's Law Dictionary 1241 (8th ed. 2004). The latter two factors, requiring (3) findings of frivolousness or harassment and (4) that the order be narrowly tailored to prevent the litigant's abusive behavior, are substantive considerations—that is, the factors help the district court define who is, in fact, a "vexatious litigant" and construct a remedy that will stop the litigant's abusive behavior while not unduly infringing the litigant's right to access the courts.

The Second Circuit, by contrast, has instructed district courts, in determining whether to enter a pre-filing order, to look at five factors:

- (1) the litigant's history of litigation and in particular whether it entailed vexatious, harassing or dupli-

tive lawsuits; (2) the litigant's motive in pursuing the litigation, e.g., does the litigant have an objective good faith expectation of prevailing?; (3) whether the litigant is represented by counsel; (4) whether the litigant has caused needless expense to other parties or has posed an unnecessary burden on the courts and their personnel; and (5) whether other sanctions would be adequate to protect the courts and other parties.

Safir, 792 F.2d at 24. These five factors are substantive in that they all address whether a party is a vexatious litigant and whether a pre-filing order will stop the vexatious litigation or if other sanctions are adequate. The Second Circuit has held that district courts should use the five Safir factors to answer the ultimate substantive issue in resolving a motion for a pre-filing order: "whether a litigant who has a history of vexatious litigation is likely to continue to abuse the judicial process and harass other parties." Id.; see also Cromer, 390 F.3d at 818 (using the Safir factors to "determin[e] whether a prefilings injunction is substantively warranted").

[6] Thus, the Second Circuit's five-factor standard provides a helpful framework for applying the two substantive factors (factors three and four) of our own four-factor standard. See Rapazzini Winery, 400 F. Supp. 2d at 1210 ("The Safir test[']s examination of history of litigation, motive, and needless burden [is] useful in determining whether the current filings are frivolous and the question of whether other sanctions are adequate [is] similar to the Ninth Circuit's requirement that any pre-filing order be narrowly tailored."). While we structure our analysis here around the four factors we outlined in De Long, it was not reversible error for the district court to structure its analysis around the similar factors identified by the Second Circuit.⁴

⁴Because the facts underlying the district court's imposition of the pre-filing order on Molski are undisputed, we could decide the merits of this appeal even if the district court had applied an incorrect legal standard. See Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 292 (1982); Kelley v. S. Pac. Co., 419 U.S. 318, 331-332 (1974).

[7] The first factor under De Long is whether Molski was given notice and an opportunity to be heard before the district court entered the pre-filing order. This is a core requirement of due process. De Long, 912 F.2d at 1147. In this case, Molski had fair notice of the possibility that he might be declared a vexatious litigant and have a pre-filing order entered against him because the district court's order was prompted by a motion filed by the defendants and served on Molski's counsel. Also, Molski had the opportunity to oppose the motion, both in writing and at a hearing. Cf. Pac. Harbor Capital, Inc. v. Carnival Air Lines, Inc., 210 F.3d 1112, 1118 (9th Cir. 2000) (holding, in a case involving sanctions levied against an attorney, that "an opportunity to be heard does not require an oral or evidentiary hearing on the issue," but instead that "[t]he opportunity to brief the issue fully satisfies due process requirements").

[8] The second factor of the De Long standard is whether the district court created an adequate record for review. "An adequate record for review should include a listing of all the cases and motions that led the district court to conclude that a vexatious litigant order was needed." De Long, 912 F.2d at 1147. The record before the district court contained a complete list of the cases filed by Molski in the Central District of California, along with the complaints from many of those cases. Although the district court's decision entering the pre-filing order did not list every case filed by Molski, it did outline and discuss many of them. See Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 864-65. The district court supplemented its findings in Mandarin Touch I with a further discussion of Molski's litigation history in Mandarin Touch II. See Mandarin Touch II, 359 F. Supp. 2d at 927-28. The district court compiled a record adequate for review of its order.

The third factor set forth by De Long gets to the heart of the vexatious litigant analysis, inquiring whether the district court made "'substantive findings as to the frivolous or harassing nature of the litigant's actions.'" De Long, 912

MOLSKI v. EVERGREEN DYNASTY CORP.

F.2d at 1148 (quoting In re Powell, 851 F.2d 427, 431 (D.C. Cir. 1988)). To decide whether the litigant's actions are frivolous or harassing, the district court must "look at 'both the number and content of the filings as indicia' of the frivolousness of the litigant's claims." Id. (quoting Powell, 851 F.2d at 431). "An injunction cannot issue merely upon a showing of litigiousness. The plaintiff's claims must not only be numerous, but also be patently without merit." Moy, 906 F.2d at 470.

[9] Molski concedes that he has filed numerous claims. However, Molski contends that his suits were not vexatious because they had merit. As the district court observed, it is likely that many of the businesses Molski sued were not in compliance with the ADA. Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 865. However, while Molski's complaints may have stated a legitimate claim for relief, it was not clearly erroneous for the district court to find that the claims of injury contained in those complaints were patently without merit. Because many of the violations Molski challenged were similar, it would have been reasonable for Molski's complaints to contain similar allegations of barriers to entry, inadequate signage, and so on. However, it is very unlikely that Molski suffered the same injuries, often multiple times in one day, performing the same activities—transferring himself from his wheelchair to the toilet or negotiating accessibility obstacles. Common sense dictates that Molski would have figured out some way to avoid repetitive injury-causing activity; even a young child who touches a hot stove quickly learns to avoid pain by not repeating the conduct. The district court's conclusion that Molski "plainly lied" in making his injury allegations was not clearly erroneous.

[10] In light of the district court's finding that Molski did not suffer the injuries he claimed, it was not clearly erroneous for the district court to conclude that the large number of complaints filed by Molski containing false or exaggerated allegations of injury were vexatious.

[11] The district court's determination that Molski harassed defendants into cash settlements was justified by its findings regarding Molski's litigation strategy. California law provides that a plaintiff who suffers discrimination based on his or her disability may recover up to three times the amount of actual damages for each offense, and that, at a minimum, the plaintiff must recover damages of not less than $4000. Cal. Civ. Code § 52(a). Thus, Molski usually sought damages of not less than $4000 for each day that a facility did not comply with the ADA. Because Molski would often wait to file suit until a full year elapsed since his visit to the defendants' establishments, defendants often faced claims for statutory damages of over one million dollars. While Molski's claim for daily damages might have been legally justified,⁵ it was not clearly erroneous for the district court to find that Molski's litigation strategy evidenced an intent to harass businesses into cash settlements.⁶

⁵District courts in our circuit disagree about whether a plaintiff may seek daily damages under California Civil Code sections 52(a) and 54.3(a). Compare Rapazzini Winery, 400 F. Supp. 2d at 1211 (holding that daily damages are not available under section 52(a)), and Doran v. Embassy Suites Hotel, No. C-02-1961, 2002 WL 1968166, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 26, 2002) (holding that daily damages are not available under either section 52(a) or 54.3(a)), with Botosan v. Fitzhugh, 13 F. Supp. 2d 1047, 1051-52 (S.D. Cal. 1998) (holding that an allegation that a plaintiff "is being subjected to a discrimination" meant that the plaintiff had been deterred from visiting a public accommodation on a daily basis, and supported a claim for daily damages under sections 52(a) and 54.3(a)); see also Arnold v. United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., 866 F. Supp. 433, 439 (N.D. Cal. 1994) (suggesting that a plaintiff can claim damages under sections 52(a) and 54.3(a) for each particular occasion of deterrence). We could not find any California court that has spoken on this issue.

⁶We note that there was a substantial disconnect between the magnitude of injuries Molski suffered and the amount of damages he sought to recover. For example, in this case, in a declaration submitted to the district court, Molski admitted that the injury he suffered at Mandarin Touch—scraping his hand on the door frame—was "not a big injury." Nonetheless, Molski claimed damages of "not less than $4,000" for each of the 363 days that elapsed between when he visited Mandarin Touch on January 25,

MOLSKI v. EVERGREEN DYNASTY CORP.

[12] The district court also did not err when it inferred an intent to harass defendants into settlement from the fact that Molski had tried on the merits only one of his roughly 400 ADA cases and the fact that Molski and the Frankovich Group targeted ethnic restaurants viewed as easy prey for coercive claims.

Frivolous litigation is not limited to cases in which a legal claim is entirely without merit. It is also frivolous for a claimant who has some measure of a legitimate claim to make false factual assertions. Just as bringing a completely baseless claim is frivolous, so too a person with a measured legitimate claim may cross the line into frivolous litigation by asserting facts that are grossly exaggerated or totally false. In an adversary system, we do not fault counsel or client for putting their 2003, and when he filed his complaint on January 23, 2004. Molski thus made a damage claim of no less than $1,452,000 on the day he filed his complaint, with that amount growing by the day. Even if Molski could claim statutory minimum damages in an amount far greater than any actual injury he suffered, see Continental Cablevision, Inc. v. Poll, 124 F.3d 1044, 1049 (9th Cir. 1997) (suggesting that statutory damages do not require proof of injury); Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1306 (9th Cir. 1990) (same), Molski's claims of damages far in excess of the injuries he suffered are not entirely irrelevant to determining whether his litigation was vexatious.

By seeking damages of not less than $4000 per day, Molski would claim actual damages beyond those to which he was arguably entitled under the California statutes. See Cal. Civ. Code §§ 52(a), 54.3(a) (permitting the recovery of actual damages). Also, there existed a possibility that the district court would reject the notion that Molski could recover daily damages, see supra note 5, and that Molski would be forced to seek, for the most part, actual damages. Additionally, Molski's complaints usually sought punitive damages. In all of those situations, to recover actual or punitive damages, Molski would need to prove a corresponding injury. Cf. Continental Cablevision, Inc., 124 F.3d at 1049; Six (6) Mexican Workers, 904 F.2d at 1306. Because he claimed damages far in excess of his actual injuries, his exaggerated claims of damages support a pre-filing order to the extent that he sought to recover more than the statutory minimum of damages.

best arguments forward, and it is likely the unusual case in which a finding of frivolous litigation follows in the train of a legitimate legal claim. It is a question of degree where the line falls between aggressive advocacy of legitimate claims and the frivolous assertion of false allegations. In this case, the district court, looking at the allegations of hundreds of lawsuits, made a decision that Molski's baseless and exaggerated claims of injuries exceeded any legitimacy and were made for the purpose of coercing settlement. We cannot on this record conclude that the district court's factual determinations were clearly erroneous or that the district court erroneously reached the legal conclusion that Molski's litigation was vexatious.

[13] The fourth and final factor in the De Long standard is that the pre-filing order must be narrowly tailored to the vexatious litigant's wrongful behavior. In De Long, we held overbroad an order preventing the plaintiff from filing any suit in a particular district court. De Long, 912 F.2d at 1148. Likewise, in O'Loughlin, we held that an order requiring a plaintiff to show good cause before making any request to proceed in forma pauperis was not narrowly tailored. O'Loughlin, 920 F.2d at 618. Also, in Moy we held that an order requiring a plaintiff to obtain leave of court to file any suit was overly broad when the plaintiff had only been highly litigious with one group of defendants. Moy, 906 F.2d at 470. Here, by contrast, the district court's order is much narrower—it only prevents Molski from filing actions under Title III of the ADA in the Central District of California. The order thus appropriately covers only the type of claims Molski had been filing vexatiously—ADA claims. Cf. Cromer, 390 F.3d at 818-19 (vacating a pre-filing order that prevented the plaintiff from making "any and all filings" in the present case and also enjoined him from making any future filings in any unrelated case in the district court without obtaining permission from the magistrate judge who issued the order); In re Packer Ave. Assocs., 884 F.2d 745, 748 (3d Cir. 1989) (vacating as not narrowly tailored a pre-filing order "prohibiting a litigant from ever again filing a document in federal court"). The order also does not prevent Molski from filing any ADA complaints, it merely subjects Molski's complaints to an initial screening review by a district judge. The order is narrowly tailored because it will not deny Molski access to courts on any ADA claim that is not frivolous, yet it adds a valuable layer of protection, which we think was warranted, for the courts and those targeted by Molski's claims. See Franklin v. Murphy, 745 F.2d 1221, 1232 (9th Cir. 1984).

In summary, we reemphasize that the simple fact that a plaintiff has filed a large number of complaints, standing alone, is not a basis for designating a litigant as "vexatious." De Long, 912 F.2d at 1147; In re Oliver, 682 F.2d 443, 446 (3d Cir. 1982). We also emphasize that the textual and factual similarity of a plaintiff's complaints, standing alone, is not a basis for finding a party to be a vexatious litigant. Accessibility barriers can be, and often are, similar in different places of public accommodation, and there is nothing inherently vexatious about using prior complaints as a template. See Wilson, 411 F. Supp. 2d at 1196 (stating that uniform instances of misconduct can justify uniform pleadings).

As we discussed above, the ADA does not permit private plaintiffs to seek damages, and limits the relief they may seek to injunctions and attorneys' fees. We recognize that the unavailability of damages reduces or removes the incentive for most disabled persons who are injured by inaccessible places of public accommodation to bring suit under the ADA. See Samuel R. Bagenstos, The Perversity of Limited Civil Rights Remedies: The Case of "Abusive" ADA Litigation, 54 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1, 5 (2006). As a result, most ADA suits are brought by a small number of private plaintiffs who view themselves as champions of the disabled. District courts should not condemn such serial litigation as vexatious as a matter of course. See De Long, 912 F.2d at 1148 n.3. For the ADA to yield its promise of equal access for the disabled, it may indeed be necessary and desirable for committed individuals to bring serial litigation advancing the time when public accommodations will be compliant with the ADA. But as important as this goal is to disabled individuals and to the public, serial litigation can become vexatious when, as here, a large number of nearly-identical complaints contain factual allegations that are contrived, exaggerated, and defy common sense. False or grossly exaggerated claims of injury, especially when made with the intent to coerce settlement, are at odds with our system of justice, and Molski's history of litigation warrants the need for a pre-filing review of his claims.

[14] We acknowledge that Molski's numerous suits were probably meritorious in part—many of the establishments he sued were likely not in compliance with the ADA. On the other hand, the district court had ample basis to conclude that Molski trumped up his claims of injury. The district court could permissibly conclude that Molski used these lawsuits and their false and exaggerated allegations as a harassing device to extract cash settlements from the targeted defendants because of their noncompliance with the ADA. In light of these conflicting considerations and the relevant standard of review, we cannot say that the district court abused its discretion in declaring Molski a vexatious litigant and in imposing a pre-filing order against him.

The final issue in this case is whether the district court erred in imposing a pre-filing order against the Frankovich Group. We review the district court's imposition of sanctions against an attorney for abuse of discretion. Weissman, 179 F.3d at 1197; Yagman v. Republic Ins., 987 F.2d 622, 628 (9th Cir. 1993). “A district court abuses its discretion in imposing sanctions when it bases its decision ‘on an erroneous view of the law or on a clearly erroneous assessment of the evidence.’” Mark Indus., Ltd. v. Sea Captain’s Choice, Inc., 50 F.3d 730, 732 (9th Cir. 1995) (quoting Cooter & Gell v. Hartmarx Corp., 496 U.S. 384, 405 (1990)).

MOLSKI v. EVERGREEN DYNASTY CORP.

The district court in this case sanctioned the Frankovich Group with a pre-filing order pursuant to its inherent power to regulate abusive or bad-faith litigation. Mandarin Touch II, 359 F. Supp. 2d at 928; see Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 43-44 (1991); Link v. Wabash R.R. Co., 370 U.S. 626, 632 (1962). “This inherent power derives from the lawyer’s role as an officer of the court which granted admission.” In re Snyder, 472 U.S. 634, 643 (1985) (citations omitted). The Supreme Court has cautioned that, because of the potency of attorney sanction orders, courts must exercise their inherent sanctioning authority with restraint and sound discretion. Chambers, 501 U.S. at 45; Roadway Express, Inc. v. Piper, 447 U.S. 752, 764 (1980).

As a procedural matter, before imposing sanctions on an attorney, the district court must afford the attorney notice and an opportunity to be heard. Weissman, 179 F.3d at 1198. As a substantive matter, justifications for imposing a pre-filing sanction on an attorney “include the attorney’s willful abuse of the judicial process, bad faith conduct during litigation, or filing frivolous papers.” Id. (citations and internal quotation marks omitted). Violations of ethics rules can also serve as a ground for imposing sanctions. See, e.g., Gomez v. Vernon, 255 F.3d 1118, 1134 (9th Cir. 2001); Erickson v. Newmar Corp., 87 F.3d 298, 303 (9th Cir. 1996); see also C.D. Cal. Local R. 83-3.1.2 (providing that attorneys practicing in the district court must comply with the Rules of Professional Conduct of the State Bar of California, that any violation of those rules “may be the basis for the imposition of discipline,” and that the Model Rules of Professional Conduct of the American Bar Association may also be considered as guidance when disciplining attorneys). Additionally, the sanction imposed must be tailored to curtail the attorney’s particular misconduct. Chambers, 501 U.S. at 57; Support Sys. Int’l, Inc. v. Mack, 45 F.3d 185, 186 (7th Cir. 1995) (per curiam); Orlett v. Cincinnati Microwave, Inc., 954 F.2d 414, 420 (6th Cir. 1992).

In this case, the district court afforded the Frankovich Group notice and an opportunity to be heard before imposing its sanction. On December 10, 2004, the district court issued an order to show cause why the court should not impose a pre-filing order on the Frankovich Group for its role in facilitating Molski's litigation. Mandarin Touch I, 347 F. Supp. 2d at 867. The Frankovich Group responded to the order in writing, and on February 7, 2005, the district court conducted a hearing on the order. These proceedings provided the Frankovich Group the notice and opportunity to be heard that due process requires. See Pac. Harbor Capital, 210 F.3d at 1118; Weissman, 179 F.3d at 1198.

The district court also did not abuse its discretion in making the substantive determination that a pre-filing order was justified based on the conduct of the Frankovich Group. As discussed above, Molski's complaints repeatedly alleged injuries that the district court found to be contrived and untrue. Also, the claims of injuries often were inconsistent with the barriers alleged. For example, complaints filed by the Frankovich Group would allege bodily injury suffered as a result of inadequate signage or the lack of an accessible parking space.

[15] In light of the similarity and exaggerated nature of the frequent injuries Molski alleged, we concluded above that the district court's findings regarding the lack of veracity in Molski's complaints were not clearly erroneous and that the district court was within its discretion in imposing a pre-filing order on Molski. When a client stumbles so far off the trail, we naturally should wonder whether the attorney for the client gave inadequate or improper advice. That the Frankovich Group filed numerous complaints containing false factual allegations, thereby enabling Molski's vexatious litigation, provided the district court with sufficient grounds on which to base its discretionary imposition of sanctions. Weissman, 179 F.3d at 1198.

The district court also emphasized that the letter that the Frankovich Group sent to the defendants in at least two cases may have violated multiple ethics rules. While we do not rely on the possible ethical violations as a ground for affirming the sanction imposed on the Frankovich Group, we note that Frankovich Group's decision to send letters that many might view as intimidating to unrepresented defendants was, at best, a questionable exercise of professional judgment. The letters gave legal advice to unrepresented parties whose interests conflicted with the interests of the Frankovich Group, and this advice quite possibly ran afoul of relevant ethical rules. See Model Rules of Prof'l Conduct R. 4.3 ("The lawyer shall not give legal advice to an unrepresented person, other than the advice to secure counsel, if the lawyer knows or reasonably should know that the interests of such a person are or have a reasonable possibility of being in conflict with the interests of the client."); Model Code of Prof'l Responsibility DR 7-104(A)(2) (providing that "a lawyer shall not . . . [g]ive advice to a person who is not represented by a lawyer, other than the advice to secure counsel, if the interests of such person are or have a reasonable possibility of being in conflict with the interests of his client").

Additionally, the letters advised the defendant that it had no bona fide defense to the ADA action, when in fact this might not be true in a particular case. For example, the ADA requires the removal of barriers in certain structures only when "such removal is readily achievable." 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(2)(A)(iv). This possibly false statement of law may have violated ethics provisions regarding a lawyer's candor to third parties. See Model Rules of Prof'l Conduct R. 4.1(a) (providing that "[i]n the course of representing a client a lawyer shall not knowingly . . . make a false statement of material fact or law to a third person"); Model Code of Prof'l Responsibility DR 7-102(A)(5).

The advice that the defendant might have insurance covering the alleged ADA violation might also have violated Model Rule 4.1(a) and Disciplinary Rule 7-102(A)(5) because California courts have held that an insurance company has no contractual duty to defend in an ADA suit alleging that a defendant's facilities were inaccessible. See Modern Dev. Co. v. Navigators Ins. Co., 111 Cal. App. 4th 932, 943 (2002). But because the district court was within its discretion in sanctioning the Frankovich Group based on the questionable allegations of physical injury in the complaints they filed, we need not rely on the possible ethics rules violations as a ground for affirming the district court's sanction.⁷

[16] Finally, we hold that the district court's pre-filing sanction is sufficiently tailored to combat the Frankovich Group's practice of repetitive litigation based on false allegations of injury. The sanction requires the Frankovich Group to seek leave of the court before filing any more ADA complaints in the Central District of California, and requires that the district court's order in this case accompany the Frankovich Group's motion for leave. Functionally, the sanction ensures that a judge will initially determine whether the factual allegations in future complaints are colorable. The order will protect against the extracting of possibly unjustified settlements from uncounseled small-business defendants intimidated by the spectre of a federal complaint coupled with a coercive and misleading communication from a law firm. However, the order does not make it impossible for the Frankovich Group to pursue meritorious ADA litigation in the district court. See Franklin, 745 F.2d at 1232. Moreover, as far as the evidence before the district court showed, the Frankovich Group only used abusive litigation tactics in connection with litigation under the ADA. The pre-filing order rightly applies only to complaints asserting claims for relief ⁷Because we do not need to rely on the possibility of ethical rule violations to sustain the district court's pre-filing order against the Frankovich Group, and we decline to do so, we also do not make an ultimate determination whether or not any ethical rule violations occurred. As a general matter, decisions on whether lawyers have violated their ethical obligations are best made in the context of formal bar association proceedings where procedural due process protects the lawyer's rights while assessing any harm to the public.

under the ADA. See De Long, 912 F.2d 1148; O'Loughlin, 920 F.2d at 618. For these reasons, we hold that the pre-filing order imposed in this case is adequately tailored to punish the past sanctionable conduct of the Frankovich Group, and, more importantly, to protect the courts and the public from any future misconduct by that law firm.⁸ Lawyers are required to give their clients' interests zealous advocacy, and while the pre-filing order in this case will not stand in the way of advocacy for legitimate claims, it will help to ensure that the services of the Frankovich Group are used in support of valid claims and not as a device to encourage settlement of unwarranted or exaggerated claims. We affirm the district court's order imposing sanctions on the Frankovich Group.

VI

In summary, we dismiss defendants Brian and Kathy McInerney from this appeal for lack of jurisdiction. We affirm the district court's order declaring Molski a vexatious litigant and requiring him to obtain leave of the court before filing another ADA complaint in the Central District of California. We also affirm the district court's order sanctioning the Frankovich Group and imposing a similar pre-filing order on it. Costs are awarded to the appellees.

AFFIRMED IN PART, DISMISSED IN PART.

⁸District courts have broad discretion in fashioning sanctions. Leon v. IDX Sys. Corp., 464 F.3d 951, 961 (9th Cir. 2006); Ritchie v. United States, 451 F.3d 1019, 1026 (9th Cir. 2006); Falstaff Brewing Corp. v. Miller Brewing Co., 702 F.2d 770, 786 (9th Cir. 1983) (Wallace, J., dissenting in part). Permissible sanctions when vexatious litigation is encountered may include not only a pre-filing order, but also monetary sanctions or even the ultimate sanction of dismissal of claims. We do not here hold that, if a court encounters vexatious litigation, a pre-filing order is the only permissible form of sanction. Rather, the district court may exercise its sound discretion under the facts presented to choose any appropriate sanction that will punish the past misconduct and prevent the future misconduct of the lawyer or party at issue.
